Writing

In my opinion, it's a big pity failure, but I don't know what "procrastination" is, even if in my native language.

I can suppose, that procrastination is time-wasting things. For example, surfing for internet for too long is waste of time. Charles Dickens says, that we need to value time-wasting things. I think it's right. If you avoid time-wasting things, you'll be more productive and you will have more free time. I think rather spend it on your hobby than surfing the net for example. Personally, I enjoy surfing the net, but not for too long. By the way, if you surfing the net for too long, your eyesight will hurt, and probably you got overweight.

In conclusion, I want to say, that the avoidance of time-wasting things makes us better and more productive.

Every example like - I.A. Mamonova
